Specification.

The generator should be of self-exciting type properly compounded to give a full voltage of 250 volts at full load. The control apparatus should be capable of varying the voltage of the generator from 220 volts to 250 volts. It should be capable of 10 per cent overload continuously and 25 per cent for 2 hours without rise of temperature above 40° over an ambient temperature of 35°C. This generator should be specially impregnated to suit the climatic conditions of this part of India.

The generator should be direct coupled to a petrol engine of suitable capacity and design for the above duty. The switch-gear should consist of a field rheostat and iron-clap switches of 30-amp. capacity to take four out-going circuits. The necessary fuse protection should be provided for the switch-board. The tendering firms should furnish the efficiencies of the complete set at full load, half-load and quarter-load and also other detailed information of design. The machine in general should be sturdy in construction and simple in operation. The set offered should be complete in every respect to operate the set in the field very easily.

Skeleton diagram of the machine as well as of the switch-gear should be furnished.
